

Subject: K-Love radio station

From Paul Davies

I am writing in regards to the The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) considerations into the way the K-Love broadcast takes place.

I may be a long way from the United States, being in Sydney, I have plenty of friends in the States in whom I have referred this radio station to. These friends and associates are both professionals and tradesman in several areas of the country. From speaking with them on a regular basis, I have found that this radio station, which I also listen to every day through the internet, they have been able to relate to problems in their lives that were yet to be addressed. K-Love has helped minister to these people and I have noticed a considerable change in the way they lead their lives.

As most people in the world, they lead a life which is searching for something, whether it be success or friendship, but most important, they want to feel loved and needed, and the gospel of Jesus has helped them realise their potential as human beings and that has dramatically impacted their lives.

Through listening to K-Love radio, it has helped them along their way through some difficult times, especially over the past few months with a few of them. I believe that if it wasn't for K-Love, they would be in a very different state of mind today. This is one of the only places (apart from their local church) that they receive encouragement to increase their potential though their day to day lives.

If K-Love's broadcasting was hindered in any way, it would be a great shame to all the people, including myself, who have been encouraged and enlightened with the teachings of the Gospel through K-Love. There are a great many people within the communities in the U.S which are in desperate need of this sort of encouragement and support that normally they wouldn't receive from the general public and brings a sense of vision to communities for their future through the word of God and how it is portrayed through the professionalism of the K-Love team.

Thank you,
Paul Davies
Director PD Financial Group Pty Ltd
Sydney – Melbourne – Brisbane – Perth
Australia